My Top 10 Tips To WIN Accumulators

1: Choose from Leagues that you know and Follow

Following leagues is important as you start to know the teams, players, and match-ups more intimately. The English Premier League is probably the most well-known league in the world and betting 1x2 is no longer as profitable as it once was. This brings me to another important point.

2: Choose better Betting markets to maximise your Odds

If I am betting in the EPL and I want to include Manchester City and Liverpool in a bet you will find that in most match-ups the odds are below 1.30. Choosing a better market to wager with these teams in is smart. Asian Handicap (Liverpool -1 or -2) could boost the odds in that game by 50%-100% which means you can build your odds with less sides.

3: Stay away from obscure Leagues with a history of Match Fixing

There is always that one side that lets down an accumulator. When I first started gambling, I would do research and see glaring opportunities in South American and African leagues. Mistake 101! A massive history of match-fixing and no control which meant I would lose out on big accumulators.

4: Choose Markets with Quick Turnarounds

Most accumulators that I see on social media platforms are in the 1x2 markets. If you are not using a bookmaker that allows for cash-outs then you are stuck for 90 mins. The best accumulators can yield better odds and be completed by half time such as BTTS, Half-Time, Cards, and Corner markets.

5: Build your Odds to Where you Want them to Be

I build my accumulators to exactly the amount I want them to be so that they fall into alignment with my betting funds for the day. I will make 10 odds, 30 odds, 50 odds and 100 odds bets which will then correspond to the amount that I wish to wager. When you are building odds you can then start to be more creative by choosing markets that suit the games you have selected based on your research. Example would be: Manchester City playing Leeds. I need another 2.50 bet to make my 30 odds accumulator. I know Man City are going to win but they only have 1.20 in the 1x2 market. Well, the Over 3.5 goals market has 2.80 and Man City have scored an average of 2.6 goals per game and Leeds conceded 2.2, including 15 in their last 5 games. There is my bet!

6: Bet in “Sessions”

I use the word sessions as I will block off times to wager my accumulators so they are not spread across a day or a weekend unless I want them to be. There is nothing worse than having 3 of your 7-game accumulator landed in the morning only to be waiting for another 4 games at 4 pm which cut and lose. So, I know that Asia and Australia is early morning so I combine the games into a “section” of accumulators. European tend to be afternoon so I will cluster these games together, likewise Americas are night time so I do the same there. Then, if the odds are really favourable, I may cluster across the board in one large accumulator.

7: Set a Budget and Stick to it!

If I gave you 10 dollars and said go and make some bets most people will put $10 on whatever accumulator they can throw together then sit with their fingers crossed. I like to split my money into sections. The higher the accumulator odds, the less of the stake of my determined budget. If I pull 100 odds, you may find me wagering $2, but you are more likely to see me wager the other $98 on a double at 3 odds which yields more of a return and more likely.

8: Stay away from Scammers

Match-fixing is a thing, I am not going to deny that. However, I have played football professionally on three continents over 10 years and not once did anyone tell me we were fixing. The games are scarce and if they are being fixed believe me, the guys involved would not be sharing that information with random people on Facebook to jeopardise their winnings.

9: Use Bonuses Wisely and Read the Small Print

Bookmaker bonuses are an essential part of making good wins when you sign up. You should always read the small print to ensure you know the required amount of odds needed to withdraw from the bookie should you win your bet.

10: The Most Important Tip: Don't Chase Your Losses

Everyone has been guilty of this at some point. If you make losses, they need to come back organically by using your strategy and research. A loss today is a loss today, it is what it is. At some point, if you research well, you will spot a gap in the bookies odds and you can lump on funds and capitalise when this happens and believe me it does. A good researcher will spot at least five mistakes a week where the odds are miles off where they should be, that is when you can throw that other $98 on one single game and claw back wins of $300.
